Visual Storytelling Workshop for Refugees from Burma*

<insert time, date>

<insert location, including address>

We need your help.

Why? To help increase awareness of the challenges and aspirations of refugees from Burma. This is your chance to help inspire greater empathy and support for refugees forced to flee their homeland due to violent conflict and/or persecution, as well as those who continue to be subjected to human rights abuses in Burma.

How can you help?

By participating in this visual storytelling workshop. At the workshop you will answer – with art supplies, which we will teach you how to use – your choice of one of the following questions:

Why were you (or your family) forced to flee Burma?

What do they remember most about your journey to safety?

What is the hardest part about living in the U.S.?

What do you miss most about Burma?

What is your dream for the future?

You needn't be an artist to participate in this workshop. You simply need to have a story to share, your story. If you have an answer to any of the questions above that could help those new to the challenges of refugees from Burma and/or to human rights issues in Burma understand why their support is needed, please join us. Make your "voice" heard.

To reserve a seat, please contact <ideally, insert name of widely-respected refugee community leader you have partnered with> at <insert his/her email and phone number>.
